9 Art Events to Attend in New York City This Week

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, ARTnews Editors

Joyce Kozloff, Calm Sea, Rough Sea, 2017, acrylic and collage on canvas. COURTESY THE ARTIST AND DC MOORE GALLERY

Opening: Joyce Kozloff at DC Moore Gallery

An exhibition titled “Girlhood” will feature Joyce Kozloff’s mixed-media work involving maps as well as childhood work that the artist found well-preserved when she was packing up her late parents’ home. In using maps, Kozloff visualizes the far-away places she dreamed of during childhood and, in doing so, highlights their innocence. “The worldview of my naïve public-school pictures is further away from me today than the places were then,” Kozloff has said. The exhibition will also feature a selection of collages from her early 2000s “Boy’s Art” series, for which she combined detailed drawings of historical battle sites with copies of her son’s superhero and war artwork.

DC Moore Gallery, 535 West 22nd Street, 2nd Floor, 6–8 p.m.
